Mrs. Lofty and L. rs. Lofty keeps a carriage,

She has dapple greys to draw it, None have I:

She's no prouder with her coachman Than am I, With my blue-eyed, laughing baby, Trundling by.

I hide his face lest she should see The cherub boy, and envy me.

Her fine husband has white fingers, Mine has not : He could give his bride a palace,-

Mine, a cot; Her's comes home beneath the starlight,-Ne'er cares she ;

Mine comes in the purple twilight, Kisses me,

And prays that He who turns life's sands Will hold his loved ones in His hands.

Mrs. Lofty has her jewels, So have I; She wears her's upon her bosom,-

Inside I: She will leave her's at Death's portal. By and bye; I shall bear my treasure with me

When I die, For I have love and she has gold, She counts her wealth, -mine can't be told.

She has those who love her-station. None have I; But I've one true heart beside me,

Glad am I: I'd not change it for a Kingdom

No, not I; God will weigh it in his balance, By and bye, And the difference define Twixt Mrs. Lofty's wealth and min

A secret, like an oyster, cannot be kept too close; for the moment it is opened it ceases to exist.

Why do revolvers go off quicker than other fire-rms?—Because they are sold by the barrel.

The minds of scholars are libraries; those of anti-uaries, lumber-rooms; those of sportsmen, kennels; hose of epicures, larders and cellars.

A distinguished lady once reproved her librarian for putting books written by male and female authors upon the same shelf.—" Never do it," said she, "without putting a prayer-book between them." A dancing-master, in renewing his soliciations for patronage, wished to express his obligations for past favors, when the printer made him say, "Most re-spectfully offers his shanks."

Good.—Seeing upon his wife's shoulders a large shawl pin, Mr. D. said: "In the military, eh—got to be captain?" She instantly remarked, pointing to a third baby in her lap: "No, recruiting sergeant in the third infantry."

A skunk once challenged a lion to single combat.
The lion declined accepting it.
"How?" said the skunk, "are you afraid?"
"Yes," replied the lion, "you only would gain fame by having had the honor to fight a lion, while every one who met me for a month to come would know that I had been in company with a skunk." hat I had been in company with a skunk."

APPEARANCES.—A coat that has marks of use upon it is a recommendation to people of sense; and a hat with too smooth a nap and too high a lustre is a derogatory circumstance. The best coats in Broadway are on the backs of penniless, broken-down merchants, clerks with pitiful saiaries, and men that don't pay up. The heaviest gold chains dangle from the fobs of gamblers and gentlemen of very limited means; costly ornaments on ladies indicate to eyes that are well open, a silly lover, or a husband cramped for funds. And when a pretty woman goes by in a suit of plain and neat apparel, it is a sign that she has fair expectations and a husband that can show a balance in his favor.—N. Y. Tribune.

A VERY PLAIN LETTER.—The following letter was sent by a man to his son in College:

My Dear son. I write to send you two pair of old breeches, that you may have a new coat made of them. Also some new socks which your mother has just knit by cutting down some of mine. Your mother sends you ten dollars, without my knowledge, and for fear you may not spend it wise! I have kept back half and only send you five. Your mother and I are well, except that your sister has got the measles. well, except that your sister has got the measles, which we think would spread among the other girls if Tom had not had them before, and he is the only one left. I hope you will do honor to my teachings, if you do not you are an ass, and your mother and myself are your affectionate parents.

CURTAIN LECTURE.—Fubbs, I want to talk to you awhile, and I want you to listen while I do it. You want to go to sleep, but I am not of the sleepy kind. It's good thing for you Mr. Fubbs, that you have a wife who imparts information by lectures, else you would be a perfect ignoramus. Not a thing about the house to read except a Bible the Christian Association gave you, and a tract which that fellow lled Porter left one day, entitled "Light to the pthen."
